

SOCIO-SPATIAL SEGREGATION IN TOURIST CITIES

The Case of Canela, Brazil

*Ricardo Ibarra Cofré
Universidad de Artes y
Ciencias Sociales - Chile*

This article aims to assess the social integration processes in institution related to work, health and education of populations living in socio-spatial segregated areas. The city of Canela, Rio Grande do Sul State, Brazil was chosen as a case study because it is mainly tourism oriented. The outcomes of the research indicate that tourism activities reproduce the capitalist accumulation principles and thus not allowing benefits to reach specific socio-spatial segregated neighborhood.

KEY WORDS: socio-spatial segregation; tourist cities; social integration.